Well, today let's give them information so that they won't do this. Here are some of the most-asked questions, and my answers:

A. Snacks can be milk or juice and bread or cereal. Raw vegetable pieces, fruit wedges, and cheese are fine, too. The children will learn something, and perhaps also keep out of some mischief, if and my answers:

Q. What constitutes a good lunch? snacks such as vegetable pieces A. The pattern to follow is the same as school lunch supervisors and good day care centers use. A minimum lunch or supper should include: meat or other protein food (egg, poultry, fish, cheese); two or more vegetables or fruits; milk, bread or rolls and a table spread such as butter. Suitable additions to this meal, if your portions have not been too big, would be a simple dessert such as fruit and/or milk pudding.
